Host Server

Automatic
Deployment

Manual
Deployment

In the local environment, I create the code, the server, and use the terminal to test the product. I use the local environment with the version control product, to save my progress.

Once all testing is complete and I have my final product, I deploy it with an option that works best for the product. It is then continuously hosted on a host server so that people can access it whenever they'd like.

After that, it's just important to maintain it. If there are updates, make sure that they get deployed.

Version control

LOCAL HOST

LOCAL HOST

Local Environment

Server

Code Editor

Terminal